"It is curious to recall some of the mental habits of those departed days.

"At most terrestrial men fancied there might be other men upon Mars, perhaps inferior to themselves and ready to welcome a missionary enterprise.

"Yet across the gulf of space, minds that are to our minds as ours are to those of the beasts that perish, intellects vast and cool and unsympathetic, regarded this earth with envious eyes, and slowly and surely drew their plans against us."

"A few seconds after midnight the crowd ...saw a star fall from heaven into the pine woods to the northwest.

"It had a greenish colour, and caused a silent brightness like summer lightning.

...as men busied themselves about their various concerns they were scrutinised and studied, perhaps almost as narrowly as a man with a microscope might scrutinise the transient creatures that swarm and multiply in a drop of water.

"I go to London and see the busy multitudes in Fleet Street and the Strand, and it comes across my mind that they are but the ghosts of the past, haunting the streets that I have seen silent and wretched, going to and fro, phantasms in a dead city, the mockery of life in a galvanised body.

"...And strangest of all is it to hold my wife's hand again, and to think that I have counted her, and that she has counted me, among the dead."
